

HOT DOG FRYING PAN

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A hot dog frying pan includes a frying pan with a carrying handle, a metal rack mounted in the frying pan for holding hot dogs for frying, the rack having a plurality of cylindrical rollers pivotally arranged in parallel and a plurality of gears meshed with one another and adapted to rotate the cylindrical rollers, and a crank handle coupled to one cylindrical roller for enabling the user 10 to rotate the cylindrical rollers with the hand.